

Mrs. Sinclair To Entertain Bridal Party

Attendants at Wedding of Her Son, Mr. Wallace, and Miss Seymour Guests at Town Home on June 7

W. W. Hoffmans Honored

Given Luncheon on Return From Europe; Additions Made to Street Festival

Mrs. Arthur Sinclair will be hostess at a dinner at her town house, 500 Madison Avenue, on June 7, at which she will entertain the members of the bridal party at the wedding of her son, Mr. Darnall Wallace, and Miss Sylvia Lord Seymour, which will take place June 10.

The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Daniel Lord, at Lawrence, L. I., and will be attended by many guests from New York, who will go by special train. Invitations for the wedding will be sent out to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wickham Hoffman were guests of honor at a luncheon given yesterday at the home of Mrs. Murray Hoffman, Mr. Albert L. Hoffman and Mrs. Burrall Hoffman Jr. at their country place at Locust Valley, L. I., near the Piping Rock Club. There were about fifty guests present. Luncheon was served under the trees on the lawn of the estate.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, who went abroad shortly after their wedding a few months ago, returned from Europe last week to the Manhattan, and this is the first opportunity their friends have had to see them. Mrs. Hoffman was Miss Katharine Miller, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Norton Miller.

The wedding of Miss Mildred Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Garrett, of Palm Beach, and Mr. Charles John Clarke, son of Mrs. Thomas Shields Clarke, of New York and Lenox, Mass., will take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Hotel Gotham.

The demand for carnations was so great throughout the day that flower dealers quickly got rid of their stocks, although there were many complaints about the price. No standard rate could be ascertained.

In the vicinity of Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, where the Sunday crowds are large, carnations were selling at anywhere from 15 to 25 cents a piece. One man, who informed that a dozen white carnations would cost him $5, turned away saying that it was nothing short of robbery. The flower dealers did not have to worry, however, for they got rid of their stock no matter what they charged.

Mother's Day was celebrated in all the churches with special sermons and large congregations. In all the institutions and local corps of the Salvation Army meetings were held with appropriate music and addresses.

"Modern Mothers" was the subject of a sermon preached in Chelsea Methodist Episcopal Church last night by the Rev. Christian P. Reiser, D.D. A special Mother's Day benefit for the Arthur Home for Blind Babies, with office at 96 Fifth Avenue, was given last night in the Little Theater.

Among those on the program who volunteered their services were Mrs. Alden of the Metropolitan, Ida Beaufy Judd, Sam Bernard, the Strand Roof, Frank Munro & Co. and Cynthia Perot with Elliot Tatro in a dancing act.

Mother's Day had its real origin in the United States in 1906 when Anne Jarvis, the youngest of eleven children, instituted the custom upon the death of her mother of making one day in the three hundred and sixty-five particularly sacred to mothers. She organized the annual Mother's Day celebration, which culminated with official recognition by Congress in 1914.

Passengers on Baltic In Pigeon Sweepstakes

Birds Released by Purser All Report in Home Cote in Newark

Four carrier pigeons, released from the S. S. Baltic Saturday afternoon between Fire Island lightship and Nantuxet Shoals by B. H. Palmer, purser of the vessel, reached their home cote at Mr. Palmer's residence, 125 South Munn Avenue, Newark, N. J., at 8:10 Sunday night. The birds were flown for the purpose, as Palmer declared, of demonstrating that radio had not put carrier pigeons out of business.

Two other birds, released at the same time, did not reach home until early Sunday morning. Passengers aboard the Baltic made up a sweepstakes over the results of the flight, many numbers being sold on each pigeon. As there were intervals of some minutes between the arrival of the first four, Christopher Mentz, who is in charge of the Palmer pigeon cote, forwarded a record of their arrival by numbers to the White Star Line, which yesterday communicated the result by radio to the liner, then 600 miles at sea.

Carnations Bloom Throughout City
For Mother's Day

Appear Even Behind Gray Walls at Sing Sing; Prices Soar From 15 to 50c; Special Services in Churches

A blanket of threatening clouds and a coolness in temperature failed to rob Mother's Day of its customary festive air yesterday. Carnations bloomed in every corner of the city. They were common to the lapel of the frock-coated churchgoer and the little urchin who picked one up by chance. Telegraph messenger boys went on their errands sporting this badge of love and loyalty to motherhood.

Behind the prison bars and gray walls of Sing Sing a touch of sentiment was kindled by the carnations that the prisoners were permitted to wear, a privilege accorded them for the first time in 1916 and now an annual custom.

The demand for carnations was so great throughout the day that flower dealers quickly got rid of their stocks, although there were many complaints about the price. No standard rate could be ascertained.

Dr. Stires Pleads For Greater Unity With Great Britain

Rector of St. Thomas's Addresses Veterans of Foreign Wars After Parade; Hopes for Better Morale

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, accompanied by a detachment of regular troops, paraded in Fifth Avenue to St. Thomas's Church to attend a memorial service yesterday afternoon. Leaving the 71st Regiment Armory at 2:30 they marched up Fifth Avenue with Henry B. Fairbanks, county chairman of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, acting as grand marshal.

In an address to the men, Dr. Ernest M. Stires reminded them that the soldiers who gave their lives for the United States handed on the pen to them that they might continue to write history, without making a blot on its pages. He pleaded for greater unity between America and Great Britain, recalling Britain's friendliness to this country in the days of the Spanish-American War.

"It is a stimulating thing to see these uniforms," said Dr. Stires. "But I think there is a uniform we need to wear all the time—an invisible uniform, which is not physical. The hope of the whole world is in the hands of the Christian soldiers wearing this invisible uniform. All that you can take with you to the other side is your character as a loyal soldier."

Civilization was given a chance to reorganize its life on a more equitable basis as a result of the late war, Dr. Stires declared. It was hoped that there would be less of the spirit of personal greed and more human sympathy. Things had scarcely worked out this way, he said.

"You will say that there has been something disappointing about the character of the last three years," he continued. "There has been a weakness, a lack of morale, since the armistice, that has shaken the faith of men. Don't say it is the fault of the church, for all of us together make up the church. Don't say it is the fault of the country, for all of us together make up the country. It is because we have failed to realize that the same principles that inspired us in times of war must inspire us in times of peace."

We should determine that no narrow and selfish politicians shall control the destiny of America, he said. While we should avoid entangling alliances we should see to it that America's influence finds proper expression wherever needed.

"Above all we should see that selfish and unpatriotic people in this country do not alienate us from our Allies," said Dr. Stires. "Of the greatest importance is a fine, strong and sympathetic understanding between the English-speaking people of the world. We should allow no alien and selfish groups to bring about serious misunderstanding between us."
